I'm currently a Neurobiology major at UCSD, but I'm currently taking classes that meet the Joint Mathematics/Economics capped major requirements. I hope to make the transition in the spring quarter.

I'm so stoked to be back (even if it's virtually)!

This is my second semester being a Peer Mentor and my 51st semester being alive (knocking violently on wood while wearing a mask).

I'm heading to UCSD in hopes to receive the Joint Mathematics/Economics degree before moving on to pursue a doctorate in mathematics (the scope of which is still undecided, there's just WAY too many awesome options!).

I'm excited to help make the abstract world of calculus a little more understandable while also maintaining the awe and wonder inherent in the field. If that's a little foo-foo for your taste, then think of me as the guy who wants to keep you from punching a hole through your computer when you get frustrated.
